This workshop series addresses the logistics related to establishing the use of the CIM intervention formats with struggling literacy learners. The targeted populations for these include students with Individualized Education Plans related to literacy and students reading and writing below grade level in need of literacy intervention. The workshop will address the use of GRP and AW with students in grades K-6. This professional development opportunity includes two days of training in summer to develop a shared understanding of literacy processing theory, strategic processing using literacy pre-assessments, progress monitoring and post-assessment and how the interventions can align with core classroom instruction. Additionally, the series includes two days of professional development on two CIM interventions, Guided Reading Plus and Assisted Writing with break-out sessions addressing the specific needs of students with and without IEPs. For more information about Guided Reading Plus and Assisted Writing Interventions please visit our website: www.wisconsinpclcenter.org.
